The Most Desirable State: Oregon by the Numbers

By Katherine Wood | Cascade Business News | Jan 20, 2015

Oregon may be synonymous with wet winters, tall trees, and covered wagons, but lately the state has taken on another meaning. For many, Oregon is now synonymous with home. In fact, more Americans are now calling Oregon home than ever before. In 2014, Oregon was the most moved-to U.S. state, according to the annual National Movers Study conducted by United Van Lines. Inbound residents made up 66 percent of moves to and from the state (a 5 percent increase from 2013, in which Oregon also held the top spot).

Utility Trailer Dealership to Open in May

By Colby Brown | Redmond Spokesman | Nov 11, 2014

U.S Highway 97 is a busy corridor, with an abundance of shipping traffic in the form of semitrailers. While there are plenty of businesses around that cater to passenger truck repair and maintenance, there aren't as many places that work on semis. However, there will be soon with the expansion of Utility Trailer Sales of Oregon in Clackamas, whose new Redmond Dealership is under construction.

Current Conceptions, Inc. Content, a Disruptive Idea & Structural Advantage

By Bill Dahl | Nov 6, 2014

Content and a disruptive idea: Current Conceptions, Inc. possesses both. The internationally acclaimed textbook authored by Dr. Senger, Pathways to Pregnancy and Parturition, serves as the foundation for ongoing content development.

The disruptive idea? Dr. Oki's expertise in incorporating the research validated principles of time compressed animated delivery (TCAD) into the content is heralded as a truly unique approach to both:
